

The Daily Courant.

Thursday, June 10. 1708.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated June 12.

Namur, June 9.

SINCE the 7th Instant at least 40 Vagabonds have been brought in hither, who under Pretence of being Soldiers and of foraging, plunder'd and murder'd People of the open Country. They will be sent to our Army encamp'd at Genap, to Morrow, with the great Convoy of Bread and Meal, to be punish'd according to their Deserts. 'Tis said a strong Detachment of our Forces are expected on the Meuse, to attack Huy; but 'tis doubted the Allies can hinder such an Attempt.

Nivelle, June 9. Yesterday the Duke of Burgundy, accompanied by all the Lieutenant-Generals, Major-Generals, and Brigadiers, took a Review of the Infantry of his Army drawn up in 3 Lines; and this Afternoon will review the Cavalry. To Morrow there will be a great Forrage made for 5 Days, so that there is little Appearance of the Army's breaking up yet. The French have set several thousand Boors to Work, to repair the Roads towards Sombref, and Gemblours. They have not yet detach'd any Men towards the Maese or the Moselle.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated June 12.

Brussels, June 12. The Duke of Marlborough has caus'd a general Pardon to be publish'd for all Deserters who shall return to their Colours, in the following Terms.

Whereas we are inform'd that several Soldiers of her Majesty's Forces, who being addicted to a Licentious Way of living, or for other Causes, have been seduc'd to quit her Majesty's Service, and to take on with the Enemy, or to withdraw themselves elsewhere, being convinc'd of their Errour, and being sensible of their Fault, would voluntarily return to their Duty, were they not deterr'd by the Fear of Punishment to which they have render'd themselves liable by their Desertion: We, by Virtue of the Power to us given by her Majesty, publish and declare by these Presents, that all Soldiers who have deserted her Majesty's Service before the Date hereof, and will return to their Regiments before the last Day of July next old Stile, shall be pardon'd for their past Crime, and admitted to serve in the Regiment from which they deserted. We further declare, that all Soldiers who shall desert hereafter, or who shall not lay hold on the Pardon which her Majesty most graciously offers them within the Time limited, and who shall hereafter be apprehended, shall be immediately punish'd with Death, without Mercy, according to the Articles of War. And to the End no Person may pretend Cause of Ignorance, we have order'd this Declaration to be publish'd, not only in the Army, but elsewhere, to the End that every one whom it concerns, may have knowledge of it, and make good Use thereof. Done at the Camp of Terbank the 9th of June 1708. New! Stile.

Sign'd

The Prince and Duke of Marlborough.

Paris, June 8. Private Letters from Madrid give repeated Accounts of the great Difficulties that Court is under for want of Money. In particular they relate, that because the Contract made with the Marquis de Santiago, to furnish the Army of the Duke of Orleans with Provisions, does not only expire on the first of June; but that Lord is in no Condition to renew and continue the Contract, having engag'd his own Estate and exhausted his Cash, to employ considerable Sums in that Service, for which very great Arrears are due to him from the Government; therefore King Philip has resolv'd to command and strictly enjoyn several of his most wealthy Subjects, to joyn in a Company, and undertake to supply the said Army with Provisions; on a Promise that they shall be repaid the Sums they shall advance, as speedily as is possible. Some are of Opinion, that the Marquis de los Balbales in solliciting and prevailing with the Court of Madrid to send his Son-in-Law Prince Pio to command the Forces in Sicily, has acted upon Measures concerted between him and his said Son-in-Law for their private Interest: For both of them having great Estates in Italy, it may well be presum'd they contriv'd to be together near that Country, to the End they may keep a watchful Eye on the War there, and govern themselves according to the Turn they shall see Affairs take.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated June 12.

Stockholm, May 24. Admiral Ankerstein has receiv'd Orders from the King to augment the Fleet to 40 Men of War and 18 Frigates; so that it will be some Time before he puts to Sea against the Muscovites. New Taxes are laid on the People of this Kingdom, under Pretence that the King wants Money to carry on the War; which makes Peace much long'd for in this Country.

Hambourg, June 8. The Body of the Troops of the Circle of lower Saxony are to decamp to Morrow, to march back to their respective Quarters. But those which lately enter'd this City, are to continue here till the Conferences for restoring our Tranquility are ended. Those Conferences are not yet begun. All our Preachers have written an intercessory Letter to the Senate in behalf of M. Krumholz: But an Answer was return'd, that this Affair was no longer before them, and that they must now apply themselves to the Ministers of the Circle. We have Advice, that the King of Denmark is at present at Fredericksbourg; but is to set out from thence to Morrow, to come and take a review of his Troops in Holstein.
